SURROUNDED BY SHARKS

Hunters of Sea Wolves Have Sport in the Channel.

When half a dozen men armed to the teeth left the police station yesterday afternoon about four o'clock and hastened to the boat landing, passers-by stated in wonder and wild-eyed curiosity seekers inquired whether a mutiny was in progress on the waterfront, or whether a convict had escaped from the prison and was to be taken dead or alive. But the armed men were not on such dangerous missions. They told a fishy tale before they had reached the landing and certainly told fish stories when they returned to the police station shortly after 7 o'clock and laid away their guns and empty cartridge belts.

It was only a shark hunting expedition, the bait being the carcass of the unfortunate horse which was drowned in the harbor the day before. The expedition was composed of Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth, Harbor Police Captain Harry Flint, "Matchlock Holmes" Doyle, Dan Renear, Sam Chillingworth and a couple of others. The party was taken out to the mouth of the channel in one of Young Brothers' launches which also towed out the carcass. Harry Flint had made several big shark hooks during the afternoon, attaching them to long coils of rope. Chunks of pork as bait for the hooks were also taken out. Each member of the party carried about twenty rounds of ammunition.

Upon arrival at the hunting grounds the horse was prepared for the expected guests of the deep. Soon the white bellies of the sharks could be seen from the launch as they rose to take a bite, and the hunters fired volleys into them. The horse bobbed up and down as the sharp teeth closed over a mouthful. A dozen sharks were seen at one time. The hooks with the hungry sea wolves, but, owing to the roughness of the ocean the hunters were compelled to cut several of their lines. The moment a shark was hit by a bullet he sank. The launch drifted when the engines were not at work and when in action the noise scared off the sharks, and considerable difficulty was experienced in keeping close to the carcass. The hunters, however, enjoyed the sport of shooting. They found that the sharks are plentiful in the vicinity of the place where the garbage scows are emptied daily, and none of the party recommend the channel or beyond as a place for swimming exercise.

MR. FORTUNE AT B. & T. EXCHANGE

Honolulu, Hawaii, Dec. 19, 1902.
Editor Advertiser:—In the issue of your paper today I find a report of some observations made by me last night before the Labor Exchange, in which I am reported as saying that "it was undoubtedly the policy of the administration to restrict the immigration of Chinese on even more radical lines than before, and to include the Japanese."

I wish to emphatically deny responsibility for this statement or anything that relates to it, as I have no authority and no disposition to speak for the administration as to its possible attitude towards the question of immigration of Asiatics or others, further than as specifically set forth in the Chinese Exclusion Act and the various immigration laws, together with the rules and regulations of the departments touching upon immigration.

What I did say was that the general sentiment of the United States and the laws already enacted on the question of immigration were all opposed in effect and tendency to the whole scheme of Asiatic immigration.

I very much regret that the sentiment has gone abroad in Hawaii that my mission here is to encourage the immigration of American negroes to this Territory. I have labored with all the newspaper men to show them that this was in no sense my mission or a part of my mission, but the impression has nevertheless unfortunately gained a footing to the prejudice of the real object for which I came here, and which is to find the real labor conditions of the Islands, their resources and possible capacity for development, and without offering suggestions myself, to secure as many suggestions as possible from those here interested in the welfare of the Territory, in the well-being of which the whole American people are of necessity concerned.

Very respectfully,
T. THOMAS FORTUNE.

[The report of Mr. Fortune's remarks were supplied to the Advertiser from the shorthand notes of a competent stenographer who was present as one of the officials of the body which Mr. Fortune addressed.—Ed. Adv.]

Mauna Loa's Big Cargo.

The steamer Mauna Loa, which arrived yesterday from Kona, Kau, and Maui ports, brought 10,000 bags of sugar and a large amount of miscellaneous goods, much of the latter being Christmas gifts from people on the other Islands for Honolulu people.

Minto Will Sack.

NEW YORK, December 11.—The Hon. Arthur Elliott, M. P., states, according to a London dispatch to the Tribune, that so far as he is aware there is no foundation for the report that his brother, Lord Minto, is about to resign the governor generalship of Canada.
